

I found the Doctest unit testing framework. The main difference between Doctest and unittest is that Doctest relies on docstrings, which are strings included in a function, file, or separate file. I would definitely be able to write unit tests for my calculator program using Doctest.